

“Chat and Chew” on Careers

Social Worker

Social Workers

counsel people to better understand and help solve social and personal problems. They may work with families, individuals, couples or social groups.

They encounter problems such as inadequate housing, lack of job skills, financial distress, substance abuse, unwanted pregnancy, child and spousal abuse or antisocial behavioral issues.

Social Work can be a stressful and difficult career field! A high tolerance for frustration and a desire to help others needed. A bachelor’s degree is a must. To perform therapy a graduate degree is needed.
