10TH ANNUAL NORTH CAROLINA DEFENSE TRADE SHOW AT FTCC

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. – August 1, 2011 - Fayetteville Technical Community College will host the North Carolina Military Business Center's 10th Annual North Carolina Defense Trade Show on Tuesday, August 9, at the Horace Sisk Gymnasium from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. In addition to the North Carolina Military Business Center (located at Fayetteville Technical Community College), the event is co-hosted by Senator Richard Burr, Senator Kay Hagan, Congressman Larry Kissell, the NC Defense Business Association, the Partnership for Defense Innovation, and the University of North Carolina system.

The purpose of the 10th Annual North Carolina Defense Trade Show is to offer extensive networking opportunities and government procurement workshops for prospective and current federal contractors. Companies and individuals interested in securing or learning how to secure government contracts are encouraged to attend. Two tracks of information-sharing related to the Government Procurement workshops will be offered: (1) Basic Workshop Series (for businesses considering federal contracting or newly engaged in federal contracting) and (2) Advanced Workshop Series (for business already engaged and growing in federal contracting). Individuals may attend sessions within either track. All workshops are free and open to the public.

To learn more about the North Carolina Military Business Center, call (910) 678-0193 or toll free at 877-245-5520 or visit the website at www.ncmbc.us; click on 10th Annual NC Defense Trade Show to learn more about the August 9th trade show event. Pre-registration (preferred) to attend the trade show and workshops is available at www.ncmbc.us by clicking inside the box "Attendee Registration."

Fayetteville Technical Community College was established in 1961 and serves over 40,000 students annually by providing over 150 affordable occupational, technical, general education, college transfer, and continuing education programs to meet students' needs and desires as well as the community.
